

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

STRAWFLOWER ELECTRONICS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

RADIOSHACK CORPORATION,

Defendant.

AND RELATED CROSS-ACTIONS.

Case No. C05-0747MMC

ORDER RE ENTRY OF MODEL PROTECTIVE ORDER

At the telephonic discovery conference with the Magistrate Judge Bernard Zimmerman on January 13, 2006 at 11:30 a.m., the Court ordered, as follows:

1. The Court took the Defendant's motion for entry of its form of protective order, and the Plaintiff's objections thereto, off calendar, and instead ordered that the Court's model protective order (which is attached as Exhibit "1") would become the protective order in this case until further order of the Court. Accordingly, the model protective order is entered in this case based upon the Court's order, not a stipulation of the parties, and without prejudice to modification of the model protective order as provided below.

2. The model protective order shall be effective as of January 13, 2006, even if a

1 written order is entered by the Court at some later date.

2 3. In the event that a party (or the parties) believes that the model protective order
3 should be modified, if a stipulation cannot be reached regarding modification of the model order
4 after the parties have met and conferred regarding the proposed modifications, then a party (or the 5 parties) may file a motion to modify the model protective order.
